10 MOST ENDANGERED HISTORIC PLACES IN MISSISSIPPI
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 2023
- Hal and Mal's, Downtown Jackson -

Misguided public policy. A lack of understanding about what makes a building historic and therefore worthy of preservation. Natural disasters. Lack of funding. Apathy. The threats to our historic resources in Mississippi are many and the obstacles to saving them can at times seem overwhelming. But, the rewards for the individuals and communities that are willing to take up the fight are so great. Just ask folks in Ocean Springs what downtown would be like without the Mary C. O'Keefe Cultural Center. Or imagine Port Gibson's iconic Church Street as an expressway. Since the first list of Mississippi's 10 Most Endangered Historic Places in Mississippi was published in 1999, the Mississippi Heritage Trust has shined a much-needed spotlight on 130 threatened historic places around the state. There have been some great victories, as well as crushing losses, while a number of communities are still working to find the resources and support to save their treasured churches, bridges, houses and schools.

This year, the Mississippi Heritage Trust will announce the 14th list of the 10 Most Endangered Historic Places in Mississippi on Thursday, October 19 at Hal and Mal's in Downtown Jackson. Please visit Past Lists on our website to learn more about our 10 Mosts from previous years.
